A New Baseline: Measuring Student Progress on the Common Core Learning Standards

August 2013

A New Baseline

- This year's grades 3-8 ELA and math proficiency percentages should not be compared directly with prior-year results.
  - Unlike prior years, proficiency is now based on the Common Core – a more demanding set of knowledge and skills necessary for 21st century college and careers.
- These results present a new and transparent baseline from which we can measure student progress and preparedness for college and careers.
- No new districts will be identified as Focus Districts and no new schools will be identified as Priority Schools based on 2012-13 assessment results.

Graduating College and Career Ready

New York's 4-year high school graduation rate is 74% for All Students. However, the percent graduating college and career ready is significantly lower.

June 2012 Four-Year Graduation Rate (2008 Cohort)

Graduation under Current Requirements		Calculated College and Career Ready*
	% Graduating		% Graduating
All Students	74.0	All Students	35.3

Why Readiness Matters - Underperformance Costs $1 Trillion

- America's urban school districts underperform compared with their suburban counterparts.
- America's suburban school districts underperform compared with their international counterparts.
- If American students performed at the same level in math as Canadian students, we would add $1 trillion annually to the economy.

Why Readiness Matters - Talent Dividend

If New York increased its college attainment rate by just one percent – from 33.8 to 34.8 percent – the State would capture a $17.5 billion Talent Dividend.
